

2025 Summer Student Research Assistantships

Academic Affairs, in collaboration with the Office of Research and Economic Development (ORED), is pleased to invite applications for the Summer Student Research Assistantship Program. This program is designed to encourage student participation in a broad range of scholarly and academic activities and is open to eligible undergraduate and graduate students from all disciplines and academic areas of study. The assistantship provides financial support during the 2025 summer intersession to undertake full-time research and scholarly activities in collaboration with a Faculty Research Mentor (Tenured/tenure track faculty, or Lecturer with a Tenured/tenure track faculty/Department Chair as Co-Mentor). Part-time lecturers with a full-time faculty co-mentor are eligible to compete. Faculty mentors are highly encouraged to apply.
